DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments, see response, filed February 7, 2011, with respect to claims 1-10 have been fully considered and are persuasive. The previous 102 rejections of the claims have been withdrawn.

As to the 6,468,810 patent, applicant asserts the patent does not disclose steps occur within the same vessel. The examiner disagrees. A single plate is a single vessel. Applicant appears to imply that different wells of the same plate constitute different vessels. The claim does not preclude any movement from different locations within the same vessel. To assert the wells of the same plate are within a different vessel would be similar to asserting different rooms within the same building/house/structure are different buildings.

Specification

2. The lengthy specification has not been checked to the extent necessary to determine the presence of all possible minor errors. Applicant's cooperation is requested in correcting any errors of which applicant may become aware in the specification.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

5. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

6. Claims 1 and 3-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Korpela, US 6,468,810 in view of Sabloewski et al., US 4,041,764.

Korpela discloses a device and method for purifying liquids that includes mixing, washing, and changing liquids. The method involves the use of paramagnetic, superparamagnetic or ferromagnetic microparticles 12 and a magnet that manipulates the microparticles. The magnet's surface is separated from the microparticles either with the aid of an extendable membrane or shapable membrane or magnet coating so that the membrane or coating does not essentially weaken the magnetic field directed at the microparticles. (column 4, lines 52-56). The magnetic particles do not accumulate directly onto the metallic surface of the magnet but around the protective membrane or coating surrounding the magnet. (column 7, lines 31-49). The magnets of the device for transfer have sleeves and a common membrane. (column 8, lines 7-9).

Microparticles can be transferred to the wash liquid in well 62 even directly from a separate storage vessel. In differing methods for processing of samples various proceedings according to each method may be realised in the wells of plate 56, such as stages for heating, cooling, mixing, measuring (analytical methods) and dosage of reagents.

Korpela does not disclose the sleeves of the device are ferromagnetic material.

Sabloewski et al. discloses a liquid transferring device including a ferromagnetic sleeve 24. (column 8, line 30).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to recognize the sleeves of the magnetic device of Korpela may be manufactured from ferromagnetic material to be used in the process of transferring magnetic materials.

Conclusion

7. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
